THE SCHOOL FAVORITES

UPON interviewing the favorites of Marlin we find that there are a number of reasons why they were so chosen, a number of ways by which they were awarded this honor.

For instance Ruth, upon being questioned as to why the student body liked her, gave the most important reasons, namely she is sure most of her popularity is with the boys, who like her upturned freckled nose, her vivacious manner, and her jumping eyes. Did you ever make a funny face at Ruth that she didn't laugh? No. She is always ready with her quick giggle and her merry chuckle.

Jack Neal, the "novio" of the Juniors has a hot line. He already knew how to think while sitting down - especially on a bench with his favorite girl. But now he has learned to think on his feet, so he has them going and coming. The development of a line is very essential to a groving - or stationary boy, so that he has progressed rather rapidly.

Dorothy Gallaher avers that her cleverness has won the popularity that she gained over-night, aside from the fact that she is a supremely graceful dancer. And right here we're going to spill a "secret of state.' She answered one advertisement that she didnt tell us anything about Do you read "Between Ourselves" by Mimi in the Waco News Tribune? Then suerly you know that she must have gleaned her witty conversation from Mimi's "Food for thought". She is as humorous as she is goodlooking - - which is or is not saying a lot. Judge for yourself by a glance at her picture.

For another instance, Willie Bartlett, the smallest giant on the campus, upon being questioned as to why the student body liked him, gave the most important reason as being that the girls like to run their fingers through his hair. Boys envy his beautiful curls, however. Also, he says, he is very generous - he gives his friends every thing of his that they want. If he were alone on a raft with only one loaf of bread between himself, a companion and starvation, he would break the loaf and eat both peices

Carolyn Threadgill confesses that she has one vanity. That is, her teeth She sincerely beleives that when she gives us a glance of her beautiful, white, pearly teeth in a flashing smile, both sexes are conquered, and thence, her being the favorite of the Sophomore Class. [If you will notice, she has honored us with a view of said pearls in the picture. Guess of which she is most proud - - those around her neck or those in her mouth.]

Mary Jane Bartlett shyly, demurely, said she didnt know just why they chose her, except that she had to chaperon her brother and his girl. We might add that she is a typical, drawling cute southern girl, easy going and friendly. She does think that she was the very one for the place, however, because she is the only one whose head could not be swollen any larger - - it is already big because she is an all-conquering fish.

So you see, everybody is satisfied with the election, and since the favorites themselves think it quite all right, that makes it unanimous.
