OUR FACUTY

Here is our faculty; our all important professors in whose hands lies our fate. However, regardless of the rather embarrassing position which they sometimes place us (or rather, we place ocrselves). We hold them in a most esteemed position and give them, collectively, our extreme admiration and rspect and, individually, our love and friendship.

First comes Mr. McIhany, better known to us as Mr. Mac, our superintendent, whom we give our utmost devotion. He has been with us for four years and in his time we have found a true friend who is always ready to solve our problems—especially those concerning mathematics.

Our principal, Mr. Betts, can always be depended upon by the students as an adviser who bestows his knowledge graciously. He has been ever faithful with "The Marlinian", and no staff could ask for a better faculty director. His suggestions are always worthwhile and his advice is the very best. He is also an able teacher of English and History.

This makes Miss Liles' second year with us and if we say that she made a host of friends the first year, we must add that her second year has been marked by an even greated devoted attention on the part of the students. Miss Liles teaches English and to her pupils she is a wonderful teacher just as she is an invaluable sponsor to the Senior class.

Miss Cottingham, English teacher, has also been with us two years. However, this short time seems like a life time, for we have found in her a friend that we will remember and love. One of the splendid things she has done is the turning out of two winning debating teams.

Mrs. Milam's subject is Algebra and she makes this all dreaded subject a trifle more attractive by the pleasant manner which she conducts her classes. She always spreads a cheerful atmosphere where she is and we love her for her sweet disposition.

Although this has been Miss Keitt's first year in Marlin High School, we have learned to love her just as we do the other members of the faculty. She, it is true, has not had quite the chance of the other teachers, since her subject has been Geometry, but she has overcome this seeming handicap and convinced the students that math isn't such a hornet's nest after all.

Miss Russell, besides being the Junior sponsor, is a Latin and History instructor, as well. Her success in training the Latin students for the tournament bespeaks her capability, for only such a teacher could have been responsible for carrying off the loving cups as was she. We all love Miss Russell and admire her immensely.

Mrs. Barnett is the Spanish professora y ella sabe espanole muy bien. This makes three years that she has been in Marlin High School, and we hope that she will be here many more. She has many friends and all of the students look on her with much respect and love.

The Home Ecoromics Department is headed by a most capable and instructive teacher, Miss Washington. The girls in her department get much pleasure as well as knowledge from her classes, for she is always ready to go on apicnic, and needless to say, there is seldom any opposition.

The Commercial Department is under the supervision of Mrs. Grizzard, who runs this branch of the school system with an extreme amount of ease and fitness. Everyone enjoys Mrs. Grizzard's classes, although she is rather opposed to chewing gum, and gets much worthwhile learning and practice from the subject which she teaches.

Mr. Wilson, who has been in Marlin for quite a while, seems a true part of the school. He teaches Agriculture and is business manager of the athletics. What would we do for a "money handler" if it were not for Mr. Wilson? Surely we could not find such a manager anywhere.

We flatter ourselves by saying that we have one of the best football coaches in the state, namely, Mr. Mayhew. He is a true sport in every phase of athletics, and is a capable history teacher, as well. His straightforward manner commands our utmost respect.

Mr. Hagler, who has charge of the Science Department, is a graduate of Baylor University. He is the basketball coach and assistant football coach. In every line of work he has proved a splendid teacher and we hope to see him back next year.

Although a newcomer, Mr. Perkins soon made himself acquainted with the school customs and we now consider him a necessary element in the revolving system of the institution. He teaches Manual Training and is respected and admired by all of his pupils.
