JOKES

Mr. Hagler: "If this experiment goes wrong the laboratory and I will be blown sky-high. Now step a little closer, students, that you may follow me."

"Speaking of famous springs," said Gabe, "I bathed in the spring of 1918."

This is a great shock to me," said the condemned man, as the warden pushed on the twenty-three hundred-volt switch.

After long sleepless hours of night and eatless hours of day, we have decided that the best jokes of the season (barring neither "College Humore" nor "Whiz Bangs") are the following: Herschell Criswell's long hours of hard study, Clinton Reed's jelly-bean auto, Edgar McLean's patented hair oil, Josephine Peters' quiet and bashful manner, Ida Holmes' straight hair, and Ivey Ola Holt's wicked eyes.

Little words of wisdom,
Little words of bluff,
Make the teachers tell us
"Sit down, that's enough."

Anna Paul: "I just love art."
Mary Jane: "Oh, is he a new one?"

Mr. Wilson: "What's a parasite?"
Evelyne: "Me."
Mr. W.: "Yes, now name another one."

Mrs. Barnett: "Are you chewing gum?"
James: "No, I am swallowing it."

Pete: "Say, do you want me to take this little rug out and beat it?"
George: "Simp! that's no rug,—that's my towel."

"Motor, and the girls motor with you; walk, and you walk alone."

Ida: "You know, you'd make a wonderful fireman."
Allen: "How's that?"
Ida: "You never take your eyes off the hose."

Teacher: "Give me a sentence using 'kith' and 'kin.'"
Fish: "I'll kith you as often as I kin."

Clinton: "How about a ride, cutie?"
Augusta: "Are you going north?"
Clinton: "Sure I am."
Augusta: "Good! Give my regards to the Eskimos."

Mrs. Barnett: "Darling."
Mr. Barnett: "What is it, dear?"
Mrs. Barnett: "Don't be silly, Raymond, I was calling Napoleon."

Forrest: "What are you doing with that gun?"
James: "Oh, I am looking for that little bird that is always telling my girl everything."

Thomas: "Do you play mah jongg?"
Louie O.: "What's that?"
Thomas: "Oh, that's a game you play with little ivory blocks."
Louie: "Oh, sure I play; why don't you say what you mean, though?"
