SALT LAKE CITY.

SALT Lake City, a place of 35,000 people, is situated at the north end of the beautiful Salt Lake Valley, 4,297 feet above the sea. It is on the southern slope of a spur from the Wasatch Mountains, where the waters of City Creek, a clear, rollicking mountain stream, have formed a semi-circular elevation, gradually shading into the valley below. The city proper lies on this rise, being two miles wide and three and a half long. From the lower southern wards, the land rises gently northward 140 feet to South Temple Street, where a steep bench lifts the rest of the city above the tops of the houses below, making the finest sites for residences and giving a magnificent view of the whole valley, as well as of the Lake and the mountains. From South Temple Street, the ground rises more rapidly over a strip one-quarter of a mile wide, but not too rapidly for residences (of which there are many), till just below the tower, where it ascends by rapid steps to another bench, 900 feet above the valley; there it is comparatively level for a short distance, when it rises abruptly into the mountains. We are thus protected on all sides except the south, for the Oquirrh Mountains bound the valley on the west, while the slope gives us the benefit of the warm rays of the winter sun, and the cool breezes from the mountains in summer, and the fall is such that we have perfect drainage. The city is laid out in squares, the streets are a hundred feet clear, with sixteen-foot sidewalks on each side; the blocks are forty rods square, except on the bench, where they are smaller; the absence of weeds is everywhere noticeable; rows of shade trees are planted along the outsides of the walks, where gutters carry the sparkling mountain water in all directions all summer long, keeping the trees thrifty, and purifying all within their reach. The extensive sewerage system now being put in will complete the drainage. In looking down from the mountains, the city in summer seems embowered in shade, while in spring, the thousands of fruit trees make it brilliant with fragrant blossoms. Going eastward from Main Street, the land rises gently for a mile and a half, being occupied by the finest residences, churches, schools and hospitals, and then rises abruptly fifty feet into the bench, a broad mesa gently sloping to the westward. The brow of this bench offers the most excellent opportunities for fine residences to be found anywhere, overlooking as it does the whole city and having the entire panorama of the city, the Lake, the mountains and the valley spread out at its feet. It is from one to two miles wide and five or more long, having room enough for all Salt Lake City as it is today. In the suburbs and throughout the wide valley are innumerable gardens and farms. There are about fifteen miles of street-car lines in the city in operation, and cable and electric lines are being built. The streets are usually smooth, making driving speedy horses a favorite pastime; Liberty Park has a fine course for public use. The streets are lighted by 200 gas lamps; the principal business houses and hotels are also lighted by 125 electric arc and 350 incandescent lamps. The telephone system has over five hundred subscribers, and is connected with all the neighboring towns to a distance of fifty miles around. The city has an excellent system of waterworks, being supplied from a pure mountain stream, and having a very strong pressure in the hydrants. In the lower wards, beyond the hydrants, a fine quality of artesian water is obtainable everywhere at a depth varying from twenty-five to 125 feet. The assessed valuation of Salt Lake County is $22,000,000, most of which is in Salt Lake City. Titles are secure. The city is exceptionally quiet and orderly. It has good society, churches and schools. There are 1,200 men employed in its manufactories. We manufacture all kinds of woolen goods, paper, boots and shoes, overalls; have three first-class flour mills, many machine shops and foundries; glass works, chemical works; make over 100,000 tons of salt, make silk, crackers, vinegar, candy, soda water, soap, type, brooms, matches, paper boxes, musical instrument, trunks, pottery, leather, fire-brick, lime, brick, engravings; have many lumber yards, etc., etc. Salt Lake is growing very rapidly, nearly 5,000 people having been added within a year; $1,126,400 worth of new buildings were erected in 1888, and the real estate transfers in the first half of 1889 were nearly $2,000,000. The total tax levy is 17 mills. Salt Lake City is the business centre and the capital of the Territory. No place was ever better adapted by Nature as the future business centre of this great region. Salt Lake always has been the centre of trade and is making greater progress every day. The bullion product alone in 1888 was nearly $10,000,000. The Western Union Telegraph Company received at this place 161,847 messages in 1888. Salt Lake is connected by telegraph and telephone with almost every town in the Territory, and with the outside world by three lines. The postoffice business of 1888 was letters, etc., 3,832,339; money orders, etc., $448,527; the registered packages handled at this office proper were 40,689; the amount of second class matter forwarded was 253,204 pounds. The deposits in the banks are now about $8,000,000. We have business houses of all kinds; one establishment alone did a business of $4,000,000 in 1888. Fuel is cheap and growing cheaper every day, as we have inexhaustible coal deposits close by. Nearly all sorts of building stone of finest quality are at our doors. Mines of the precious metals are all around us. Salt Lake Valley has several great smelters doing a heavy business. Salt Lake is well supplied with newspapers. She has three dailies, two semi-weeklies, five weeklies, three semi-monthlies and nine monthlies. Salt Lake is no less attractive to the tourist than to the business man. The climate is superb, the bathing in Great Salt Lake is not equalled anywhere, the mountains are close by, where any climate can be had in summer, where the wealth of flowers is endless, the scenery is grand, and where there is so much to attract and so little to repel. A stranger naturally turns to the great gray monument, the Temple, which towers above all else, and is visible for over twenty miles. This structure is made entirely of granite, taken from the Wasatch, at the mouth of Little Cottonwood. It is 186 feet long, 99 feet wide, and 100 feet high, exclusive of the towers, which are to be 220 feet high. The walls are 10 feet wide at the base, and 5 feet at the top. The Temple was begun in 1853 and will not be completed for several years to come. No work has been done upon it of late. It has cost already nearly $3,000,000. The Tabernacle, which stands on the same block as the Temple, was finished in October, 1867. It is 250 by 150 by 80 feet, and is used as the general assembly hall of the Mormons. It is built in the form of an ellipse; the dome-like roof is also ellipsoid; this, therefore, is one of the famous whispering galleries; the pulpit being at one focus (where the visitor is placed), and at the farther end (the other focus), a pin can readily be heard when it is dropped. Wonderful! It might be different one-half nearer. The seating capacity is about 8,000. The roof is destitute of supports except at the bottom; it is therefore one of the largest arches. The huge organ, one of the largest in this country, is the great attraction of the Tabernacle. It is 48 feet high and 33 feet wide, containing 57 stops. There are 2,648 pipes. The cost was $100,000. It is one of the rare treats to hear the mellow tones of this instrument on Sunday. The building is heated by steam and lighted by gas. The Assembly Hall is near the Tabernacle. It is built also of granite, but not faced as is the stone of the Temple. It is of Gothic architecture in part. There is a fine pipe organ here, built entirely of native wood. At the back of the Tabernacle is the unused Endowment House, where marriages were wont to be celebrated. The whole block is enclosed by a cement wall 12 feet high. Leaving the Temple, we go up South Temple Street, passing the Deseret News Office, where the daily issue is printed on Utah paper and with Utah type. Back of the News Office is the Tithing Yard, where the tithes are paid and the new converts are collected. Passing farther eastward, we see the Lion House, the headquarters of the church; the Bee-hive House, Brigham Young's residence, now used as a railroad office; across the way is the Historian's office and on the corner is Amelia Palace, lately the residence of the head of the Mormon church. Turning the corner northward is the Eagle Gate, and around back of it, on the brow of the hill, is Brigham's grave. Here we secure a magnificent view of the city and the valley, one worth going many miles to see. Another hour might well be spent in ascending Ensign Peak, a hill about the height of Mount Washington, and about 2,000 feet above the city. From here a magnificent view of the whole region is obtained. We can see the whole city spread out at our feet, and the valley checkered with innumerable farms for twenty miles. To the west of us, fifteen miles away, the snow-capped Oquirrh, 10,000 feet high, stand out in bold relief, with every detail of canyons and ridges, rocks and forests distinctly seen in the clear, pure air; and even the Aquia mountains are plainly visible beyond where the Oquirrh end and the Lake begins; still farther away we see the hazy outlines of other ranges till they are lost in distance. Northwestward, the Lake lies before us, like a mirror, with its great islands, extending far away till also lost in the dimly outlined mountains 100 miles beyond. On the east, the Wasatch almost touch the city. Fort Douglas, three miles away, nestles under the great red sandstones, and farther southward, the mountains rise precipitously, in majestic grandeur, nearly 8,000 feet above the valley and 12,000 feet above the sea. The mantle of snow still covers the lofty peaks, a cloud floats lazily far below them or in smoky billows rolls upward as if the mountains were on fire. At other times, dark clouds sink from the sky, touching the peaks and, falling lower and lower, leave a snowy mantle behind them, when they sweep out over the valley, dropping a gentle spring shower upon the opening fruit blossoms and lovely flowers. So plainly visible is every detail, the rocks, the trees and the brush, that one cannot believe that the nearest bases of the lofty peaks are ten miles away. One would be willing to wager to walk there in half an hour, and climb to the summit in an hour, but few people will be satisfied in simply seeing these things. Taking a carriage, we can drive up City Creek seven or eight miles and enjoy ourselves walking over snowslides, and while sitting on a snowbank can pick dog-tooth violets and Fritillarias. Returning, we find parasols and umbrellas very serviceable as we enter the city. Equally as pleasant drives might be taken to Fort Douglas, to Emigration, Parley's

PIANOS!

THE CONOVER.

For touch, tone, durability and elegance of workmanship it stands unsurpassed by any piano in America. The makers, Conover Bros. & Co., have won the prize medal in the last California State fair, and their pianos are endorsed by the following eminent artists: Mme. Rive King, Lilian Nordica, Ella F. Backus, G. W. Morgan, Robt. Goldbeck, Dr. S. N. Penfield, and a host of others. Prof. Radcliffe, of Salt Lake City, has purchased a fine Conover piano for his own use, which speaks volumes in favor of this instrument.

T. C. Vall, Bursar of the College of the Sisters of Bethany, Topeka, Kan., wrote of the Conover piano, July 29, 1885: Their wearing qualities seem to be all to be desired. They stand well in tune, are easy of action, and their musical qualities, as well as their mechanical construction are all that we could require. They have had with us about 12 hours' use each day, thus giving them a thorough test.

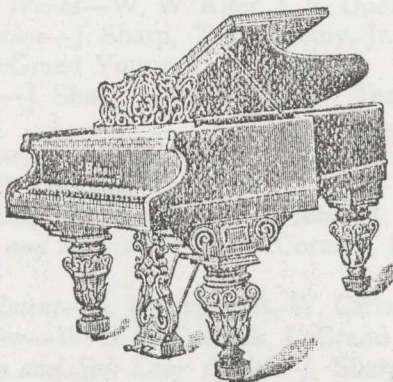

May 23, 1887, he wrote: My opinion of the Conover pianos has not changed. We have 10 of them in use. We have 14 other pianos, but none of them give as good satisfaction as the Conover.

It will be seen by reading the above that a trial of six hundred days, at twelve hours' daily use, equivalent to twelve years in the family, increases their popularity in one of the largest and best conducted female schools in America.

and Mill Creek canyons. A still more enjoyable ride is down the valley twelve miles to Big Cottonwood Canyon, under the shadow of the lofty peaks whose tremendous height we now begin to realize. Here we enter the heart of the mountains through a narrow gorge a thousand feet high, in which there is many a nook in which the sun never shines, with a roaring cataract on one side, precipitous walls on the other, and a narrow road winding in and out for several miles, in the midst of the grandest scenery. We can fish, sketch, pick ferns and flowers, or climb to our hearts' desire.

BECK'S HOT SPRINGS.

The Fountain of Life.

THE lake during the summer months excepted, the Hot and Warm Springs in the limits of Salt Lake City are not only the most healthful and valuable points to the tourist in Utah, but are of more than passing interest to the health-seeker, and will prove one of the most potent factors in the popularity as a resort that yet awaits Salt Lake City. Within a very short time there will be increased tramway facilities to the Hot Springs, when these remarkable waters will be as popular and as much sought after by residents as they are now admired and talked of by tourists. There was one time when the Hot Springs were considered of value only because of the lake caused by the Jordan's overflow, where reasonably good hunting could be had in the fall and very fair skating in the winter. About this time, Mr. John Beck took hold of the place and began advertising it. He put up the buildings that are still on the grounds and made accommodations for the reception of patients and for their keeping while they remained at the Springs. At that time a great many of our citizens laughed at the idea of the Springs being of any value whatever except as a curiosity, and predicted all sorts of failures for the energetic and clear-headed Beck. Beck, through other business entanglements, failed, and these wise ones called aloud for all to note the fulfillment of their predictions. But what will this class think of the notice which appeared in the columns of a daily paper some time since, wherein it was stated that about fifteen applicants a week for accommodations had to be turned away for a lack of room to keep them? What makes this statement most suggestive is the fact that the rush on the Hot Spring; is not a spasmodic demand, but it is of a steady growth and will increase with a widening of the knowledge regarding the remarkable healing properties of these waters. Another fact in this connection, and perhaps more significant than the other, is that this increase in application has occurred during the season when the finest bathing in the world—our Salt Lake—was at its best. It is generally understood that the attendance at the Springs will increase as the bathing seasons of the lake draw to a close, and especially during the winter, but the item as to past attendance has never before been known.

One thing should be made perfectly clear. There have been no applications rejected because of insufficient water to accommodate all, but because the hotel facilities are limited. It is said that at the Hot Springs of Arkansas there were 6,000 persons living in tents who had gone there to try the waters, and that they had to wait for it to accumulate, as it is so scarce. The Hot Springs here are in every respect the equal of those in Arkansas, and in very many particulars superior. They are infinitely ahead of anything of the kind in our Territory. In another particular they have a great advantage over the Arkansas waters, and that is in the quantity. The Hot Springs here discharge something over 200 gallons a minute, enough for any number of bathers, and to keep a steady stream of pure water flowing through the several baths all the time.

Not only is it good for bathing, but the writer of this year ago heard Dr. J. M. Benedict state that, while people were bringing any number of medicinal waters into Salt Lake from different parts of the world, they had a mineral water here that was the equal and infinitely superior to most of them. Some of our own citizens have for a long time recognized the healing properties of the waters for internal application, and have been in the habit of making periodical visits to the Springs and carrying back a supply to last them until another trip could be made. Until Mr. John Beck took hold of them, however, the idea was not at all general that there was any value in the water that would recommend it for external application. Herein lies its great strength, and its great value in this respect is materially augmented because of its liberal flow.

Several analyses of the waters have been made, each later one showing some additional virtue that was not brought out in the one preceding. The last is certainly the most gratifying. It shows that there are no less than nineteen medicinal principles in the waters, and that some of them are those which are the great and distinguishing features of the celebrated European springs. The last analysis, made by H. Hirsching, C. E. M. E., shows the following result:

The chemist also adds: "By means of proper arrangements and construction of the plant, almost any sanitary or hygienic effect could be obtained, as the water contains sulphur, carbonic acid, alkali, saline matter, iron and glauber salts, and bitter salt, which are the most important ingredients of the celebrated thermal waters in Europe; also in some of those in this country. But, after all, the best test is in what is accomplished in results by the waters. The springs of the different watering places are not valuable because of an analysis, but for the cures they effect. In the diseases and ailments for which treatment is given at the Hot Springs, cures are almost certain. Persons afflicted with rheumatism of such long standing, and so aggravated that they could not raise a hand as high as their heads, have been cured so fully that they could do almost anything in the ordinary use of the hands without experiencing the slightest pain. In fact, so complete and thorough have been the cures in all cases which have so far come for treatment, that there is talk of guaranteeing a cure or taking no pay as a means of inducing the afflicted to come along and be cured. For skin diseases and scrofula, and for internal disorders, it has proved equally efficacious.

The baths are so arranged that the same person never uses the waters twice. According as the patient is afflicted, so is he treated. If with rheumatism, he gets the benefit of the waters so hot that it is about all he can do to stand them to begin with, though they have already been cooled so as to make it possible for them to be used. If the patient is afflicted with a skin disease, he is given a private bath, the discharge from which has no connection whatever with the other bath rooms. If the water is wanted to drink, it can be had direct and pure as it bubbles up from beneath the huge mountain that overhangs it. If the desire is only to have a fine bath and a swim, there is a large general bath room, about 100 feet in length, with private dressing rooms opening directly into it, and with a stream of the water continually running in and out, and if there be not room to accommodate all who may want to board at the Springs (for it is said they do set one of the best tables in the country), the Springs are still in the city limits, and trains and wagons run to and from them at all hours of the day, and there are good hotels and enough in the city and within a mile and a half of the Springs where all who want the benefit of the water can be well provided for until such time as the accommodations of the Springs are made to equal the virtues of the waters themselves.

The moneyed value of the Springs cannot be estimated. There will come a time when one of the finest hotels in the country will be built on the site of these Hot Springs, and thousands of persons from all parts of the world will flock to test their healing virtues and rejoice that such waters exist. It will not be a summer resort alone, as the lake is. It will be a spot to which the sick and broken down will turn in summer and winter during all the year's seasons in search of health. And so far as healing waters can rehabilitate the wrecked and disease-afflicted man, these Hot Springs, which John Beck began to advertise, will bring about the wished-for results.

THE AMOS ADDITION.

The day has passed when the growth of Salt Lake into a large city may be discussed as problematical. Were all things not tending in this direction, the railroad movements for some months past would demonstrate the fact beyond the peradventure of a further doubt. One of the evidences treading in the direction named, and outside of and in addition to the railroad movements, is the tendency to subdivisions in and adjoining the city into tracts of land available for residence purposes. This is only done with any hope of success where the lands in the city proper have come into such demand that the average man can neither afford to buy them nor to hold them if he be already a fortunate possessor. The earliest subdivision was in the northwestern part of the city, and it is a fact that it still continues to be the most popular place, more lots being sold there and the building exceeding that done on all the other additions combined. Another great impetus has been given to these lands because of the heavy purchases made by the Union Pacific representatives, it being clearly the intention of that company to locate its general and most extensive roundhouses in that direction, which will, undoubtedly, create a very great demand for homes in that vicinity and cause a material enhancement of values. Among the lucky owners of additions hereabouts is Mr. G. D. Amos, who, with rare insight to business opportunities, early discovered the direction of real estate matters, and made himself snug in the possession of a fine tract of land while prices were yet in their infancy, and has to-day one of the most desirable and accessible subdivisions of the city, which he is disposing of at a figure which shows that he does not want the earth. But perhaps the best way to tell it is to quote an article on the matter from the Herald, which will give the expression of a public print on this addition. Here it is: "Mr. G. D. Amos, a Scotchman from 'Wayback,' a man and butcher of splendid business habits, respected by all who know him, took it into his head to invest in Utah some of the money he had made in Utah—and it goes for the saying that such men are not too plentiful in Salt Lake City, Ogden, Provo, or anywhere else in the Territory—and well he has been paid for his risk. He acknowledges this himself. There are no 'flies' on Amos, and not a fly was ever known to be around, even in the hottest weather, his well-equipped establishment on Second South Street. From Mr. Frank Foote, the well-known assayer of this city, now deceased, he purchased, for a good round sum, what is now designated the 'Amos Addition.' He bought it not so much with a view to making a pile of money, but because he loved the location—near to town and where, with an outlay of very little, he could, with an eye leaning toward the business in which he was and is immediately engaged, have all he could desire—plenty of land, fine crops of lucerne—four crops per year—and a home as retired and quiet as the most fastidious could wish. About two years ago Mr. Amos sold to Mr. Kinney sixty-four acres, now known as North Salt Lake, and which, by the way, is now being built up in a manner that very few people in this city, unless they go out to the Hot Springs occasionally, have the slightest idea of. There is a town, an 'addition,' or anything else one may have a mind to call it, growing up in North Salt Lake, sure. But Mr. Amos himself with a foresight that cannot be beaten, even after disposing of the land now occupied by North Salt Lake, kept in reserve the piece upon which he now resides, sixty-two acres in extent, and known, as has already been stated, as the 'Amos Addition.' Very few people in this city, no matter how long their residence therein may have been, know where the property which a Herald reporter, at the invitation of Mr. Amos, visited yesterday morning, is located. Well, the 'Amos Addition' (that is the first filing) is located almost west of the smelter building on the Utah Central railroad, the southern portion of the estate terminating on Ninth North Street. The western end is on the Jordan River, and a more lovely spot cannot be imagined. The river makes a beautiful bend to the west of Mr. Amos' house. In the bend there is a grove of tall, magnificent trees, and under foot the clover and grass is so fine that one almost imagines he is walking on a carpet. The whole surrounding brings vividly to mind an estate of an English or Irish land owner. The river, the trees, the grass, the stock of fine cattle, the horses, chickens, turkeys, the barns, the corrals, etc., all go to make up a scene that is lovely in the extreme. England or Ireland can show nothing better. In the month of May, when all the fruit trees, rose bushes, immense Canadian poplars, are in leaf and bloom, the 'Amos Addition' must be a lovely place and one, while it may have been in obscurity in the past, is bound to come to the front in the very near future—in fact, and in a word, the moment one visits the place he is surprised that it has not been brought into the market before now. The 'Amos Addition,' as already stated, is bounded on the west and northwest by the Jordan River, stands on a ridge high and dry, and the whole sixty-two acres of land owned by Mr. Amos are valuable to an extent that can hardly be appreciated. The land is very rich; the finest lucerne in the world is now sprouting out of the ground, and as for the production of potatoes, onions, carrots, cabbage and fruits of every description, no soil can beat it. From the Jordan River all the water can be had that is required for irrigation and other purposes. In addition to this, however, there are two fine flowing wells on the estate. These were found at an average depth of about 180 feet, and the water is excellent in quality. In fact everybody who buys and builds on this addition can have, without doubt, a flowing well for the cost of sinking. There is no question of water supply upon this estate. There is water to the east and west, north and south, to satisfy everybody and plenty to spare. Amos is away ahead in water, and the moment it is put upon the land, after having been prepared and seeded, something will be the result. Four hundred bushels of potatoes to the acre have been raised upon this land time and time again; and this result can be repeated without very much trouble. The 'Amos Addition' can be reached, by the aid of a horse and buggy, in twenty-five minutes from the postoffice in this city. When you get there, standing in a field of incomparable fineness, a panorama of rare loveliness spreads out before the vision, turn whichever way one may. Mr. Amos does not desire to own the earth. His property is on the market, and like other men who have a large amount of property on their hands, the most reasonable terms will be given to purchasers—so much down and so much per month (at 6 per cent.) until the lot or lots are paid for. No hurry. A fair and square deal all through. A perfect title, a perfect survey—nothing could be more perfect. Amos has got the 'boss.'"

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Organized January, 1867.

The James B. McKean Post, No. 1, Department of Utah, located in Salt Lake City, was organized September 18th, 1878, with George R. Maxwell as Post Commander and eighteen charter members. The objects of the organization are to preserve and strengthen those fraternal feelings which bind together comrades in the war of the late rebellion, to perpetuate the memory of the dead, to assist comrades and the widows and orphans of those who fell in the war, to maintain true allegiance to the United States of America, to discountenance whatever tends to weaken loyalty or incite to treason or rebellion and to encourage the spread of universal liberty, equal rights and justice to all men. All soldiers or sailors of the United States army or navy, who served between April 12th, 1861, and April 9th, 1865, in the war for the suppression of the rebellion, and who have not borne arms against the United States, are eligible for membership. The present name of the Post was given in honor of Hon. James B. McKean, for a time Chief Justice for Utah Territory—after his decease. Since the organization of the Grand Army in Utah, now over eleven years, the membership has greatly increased. The following officers were elected at the encampment held in Salt Lake City 1888, in their new hall in the building next to the Cullen Hotel, where their future headquarters will be, and where regular business meetings are held on the fourth Friday of each month, and the camp-fires are held on the second Friday of each month: J. The income and earnings are accumulated until the total amount under control of the association is sufficient to pay to each

Thus assuring the Traveling Public Superior Accommodations in every respect.

Its Passenger Trains were built expressly for this line by the Pullman Palace Car Co., which is a guarantee that they are as perfect and complete in every detail as the best taste and most thorough experience can suggest, and no convenience for the comfort and service of the traveling public has been overlooked. In addition to its regular passenger equipment, there is also in service a line of magnificent Reclining Chair Cars, no pains or expense having been spared to make these cars the most restful and comfort-assuring vehicles of their class in America. They are not only pleasant, but comfortable and restful, and to occupy a chair in these superb coaches it should be borne in mind that there is no extra charge made for the privilege. In fact the C. K. & N. is the GREAT FREE RECLINING-CHAIR LINE WEST OF THE MISSOURI RIVER, running Solid Vestibule Trains through between Denver, Pueblo, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Chicago without change. Prompt east-bound connections for St. Louis and all points east and south.

IMPORTANT. — The CHICAGO, KANSAS & NEBRASKA Railway runs the only Solid Vestibule Trains west of the Missouri River, via Kansas City and St. Joseph, direct to Chicago.

Secure your tickets via the "Rock Island Route," and enjoy the luxuries its accommodations afford. They are excelled by none.

Anyone contemplating a trip, on pleasure or business, for a long or short distance, cannot afford to overlook the facts herein contained, and after one trip will always recommend it to their friends as the BEST.
